Jazz singer / pianist, Robin Phillips, is touring his new 'Sing. Play.. for Pleasure' album project in the South East this Autumn. The album was launched at one of the UK's top jazz clubs, Pizza Express Dean Street, earlier in the year and has received positive reviews and airplay from the media.

The 'Sing. Play.' album is a vocalese pilgrimage, inspired by one of the genre's originators, King Pleasure. On the album Robin combines voice and piano as he plays, as well as sings, the collection of vocalese tunes, some with original lyrics.

The tour performances will also include music from Robin's other album projects and offer a glimpse of his next album project, scheduled for 2015. Performances will feature the Robin Phillips Trio. In Cambridge the trio is joined by saxophonist Sam Mayne and in North Finchley, Robin will be accompanied by the Safari Music house trio.

"Well done, well sung! ...You show great taste and discretion in this entire compilation...
Ever onward into vocalese!" – Jon Hendricks, Vocalese Legend

"...an exemplary execution of jazz standards... he brings an effortless deftness to each of the songs chosen, sounding at times just like Chet Baker or Mose Allison..." – LondonJazz

"...one of the capital's leading jazz singer / pianists..." – Musician magazine

Vocalese = To add lyrics to a solo that was once improvised and sing it as a new song
